Message from the CEO

11 teams, all with the same dream to become Hyundai A-League Premiers and Champions.

With every season comes a fresh set of challenges and goals that Football Federation Australia (FFA) must consider when constructing the Hyundai A-League fixture schedule.

Our sport must not only factor club and local market preferences when designing a season draw but also take into account issues that arise from being in an elite global sport, the international football calendars of FIFA and the Asian Football Confederation (AFC)

In Australia factors include,

- Player and match official welfare, including time of play during summer months and travel schedules in a competition which is both national and trans-Tasman
- Venue availability through a very crowded market
- Preferences of our host broadcaster and official partner, Fox Sports, to create a premium televised sporting landscape that benefits those who are not able to make it to the game
- The growth and development of the Hyundai A-League when forging into new markets and taking the Hyundai A-League to more areas in Australia than ever before
- And finally, this Hyundai A-League season will see more matches than ever before (165), which have to be accommodated

Hyundai A-League 2010/11 will also see the emergence of what is sure to be one of the biggest rivalries in Australian sport when a second Melbourne team, Melbourne Heart, enters the competition for their debut season.

The addition of the Melbourne Heart will provide the Hyundai A-League with our first genuine local derby; never before have we had two teams from the same city.

Other rivalries will continue to fortify including the "F3 Derby" between Central Coast Mariners and Newcastle Jets, the "M1 Derby" between Brisbane Roar and Gold Coast United and battles on the pitch continuing between three of the Hyundai A-League's fiercest competitors Adelaide United, Melbourne Victory and Sydney FC.

The Hyundai A-League 2010/11 season will see:

- 11 teams all playing 30 matches each
- 27 weeks of football
- An additional 30 more games taking the total number of regular season matches to 165
- Each club playing each other on three occasions
- An increase in the number of midweek matches
- First ever-double header
- A seven (7) match Finals Series including the Hyundai A-League 2011 Grand Final

Commencing on the same weekend as our previous season, the Hyundai A-League kicks-off on Thursday, August 5, with our newest club, Melbourne Heart facing off in their first ever Hyundai A-League match against foundation club the Central Coast Mariners. This match will also be the first Hyundai A-League fixture to be played at Melbourne's new rectangular stadium, AAMI Park.

The opening weekend also sees a Hyundai A-League 2010 Grand Final rematch when Sydney FC host Melbourne Victory at the Sydney Football Stadium and in Queensland the first of three derbies when Brisbane Roar travel to Skilled Park to take on Gold Coast United.

Finally, this draw was developed to enable the maximum crowd and television audience potential with the draw being scheduled to ensure more people could enjoy more games in peak periods such as public holidays and over the holiday season.

I trust this Hyundai A-League Season Draw booklet reflects the delicate balance, transparency and impartiality that goes into constructing it.

I believe that we have delivered a draw that is both equitable and fair and will produce some of the most exciting football in Hyundai A-League history and will continue building and improving the Hyundai A-League for our ever expanding football community.

Ben Buckley
Chief Executive Officer
Football Federation Australia

How the Hyundai A-League 2010/11 season draw was developed

Prior to the construction of the season draw, all Hyundai A-League clubs and venues were asked to provide their preferences for match day and their respective venue availability schedule for consideration by FFA.

In addition, discussions were held with the host broadcaster, FOX SPORTS, to determine the sequencing of matches across a weekend.

With the Hyundai A-League expanding to an 11 team competition, with the inclusion of Melbourne Heart, there have been some fundamental changes to the structure of the fixture schedule. All Hyundai A-League clubs will play 30 games during the regular season resulting in the total number of regular season games increasing from 135 to 165 (up 22% on 2009/10). The majority of these additional 30 games will be played as midweek fixtures.

The Hyundai A-League 2010/11 season will be played over a 27 week period and will commence in Melbourne on Thursday, 5 August 2010, with Melbourne Heart hosting Central Coast Mariners at AAMI Park and will conclude on Sunday 13 February 2011, with the Central Coast Mariners hosting the Newcastle Jets.

The Hyundai A-League 2011 Finals Series will be run over a four (4) week period, commencing the weekend of 18-20 February 2011. Having considered the potential impact on the clubs participating in the AFC Champions League 2011, the Hyundai A-League 2011 Grand Final has been brought forward to finish on the weekend of 11-13 March, one (1) week earlier than the previous season.

With an expanded 11-team competition, not every Hyundai A-League club will play a fixture each weekend. Due to the condensed length of the season, 27 weeks, the number of fixtures and the availability of venues on weekends, it was not possible to achieve an equal number of breaks for each Hyundai A-League club.

The Hyundai A-League will maintain a break in the season for the FIFA Match Dates in October, being the weekend 8-10 October 2010; however we will play through the AFC Asian Cup 2011.

In constructing the fixture schedule, FFA considered a number of factors:

- Maintaining a balance of fairness and equality, together with the ability to maximize League attendance (gate and broadcast);
- Extensive unavailability of venues, particularly those which are undergoing turf renovations, as well as through the period when the AFL and NRL are concluding their seasons;
- The impact of an additional thirty (30) regular season games to the competition (135 to 165), which represents an increase of 22% from 2009/10;
- The significant increase in the number of midweek fixtures and the impact of these fixtures on club travel schedules;
- Specific club requests and match day preferences;

Below is a summary snapshot of the key principles of the Hyundai A-League 2010/11 season draw:

- Eleven (11) teams, thirty (30) games per Club season;
- The season will be played over a twenty-seven (27) week period;
- All Clubs will play fifteen (15) home games and fifteen (15) away games;
- Each club will play each other three (3) times throughout the season;
- Regular Season will be inclusive of one (1) FIFA date breaks (8-10 October 2010);
- Regular Season to commence 5 August 2010 and conclude 11-13 February 2011;
- The Hyundai A-League 2011 Finals Series will remain in the current six (6) team format;
- The Hyundai A-League Grand Final to be played on the weekend 11-13 March 2011;
- Travel patterns for Clubs and, where possible, building in fixtures to allow for potential stop-over opportunities in between fixtures.
